EDEN TO MAKE STATEMENT ON MAFFEY REPORT TO-MORROW

LONDON NAVAL PARLEY MORE COMPLICATIONS ARISE POLITICAL ELEMENTS INVOLVED

London, To-day.
The French and Italian political desiderata now advanced threaten further complications and the protraction of the winding up of the Naval Conference. As an outcome of the series of bilateral meetings between Mr. Anthony Eden, Mr. Norman Davis, Admiral Corbin and Signor Grandi, it understood that difficulties have arisen over the text of the protocol to accompany the technical naval treaty.

France desires a firm affirmation that air, land and sea armaments are interdependent, and a restoration of the ruptured Stressa alliance. Signor Grandi is reported to have indicated that Italy is at present not raising the questions of sanctions or the withdrawal of the British Fleet from the Mediterranean, but asks that the protocol be so worded as to enable such political questions to be pursued when the Naval Treaty is initiated.

In view of the situation in the United States Mr. Norman Davis has declined to sign a document involving American connection with European politics. — Reuter.

POLITICS IN FRANCE Sarraut Gets Vote Of Confidence STORMY CHAMBER DEBATE

Paris, To-day.
M. Sarraut challenged, and obtained a vote of confidence from the Chamber by a majority of 229 at the conclusion of a stormy debate, when he expressed his inability immediately to furnish information demanded by the Right Party regarding the Communist attack on the Action Française headquarters. Another Deputy alleged that the Government had suppressed the Royalist League but had yet authorised illegal demonstrations by the Popular Front.
M. Sarraut replied that the demonstrations were authorised owing to the recent attack on M. Leon Blum, which were the outcome of a prolonged and violent press campaign by the Action Française. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

PEPPER CASE ENDED ALL DEFENDANTS SENTENCED

London, To-day.
The costs of the pepper trial, which was concluded yesterday, are in the neighbourhood of $30,000. All three defendants were found guilty on all the counts. Bishringist and Howson being sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment each and Hardy to nine months, all in the second division. — Reuter.

MOUNT EVEREST EXPEDITION Selection Of Native Porters

Darjeeling, To-day.
A large number of native porters have been selected for the Mount Everest expedition by Major Morris, but the final selection will be made by Mr. Hugh Rutledge, the leader of the expedition. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Dr. T. C. Wang, above, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, arrived in the Colony yesterday by the s.s. President Grant. He is making a tour of South China as Governor of the 51st District of Rotary and addressed local Rotarians last night at the Hong Kong Hotel.

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT Violation Of Locarno Treaty?

GERMANY'S CHALLENGE

Berlin, To-day.
The definite statement that Germany regards the Franco-Soviet agreement as a violation of the Locarno Treaty is made in a communique issued by a German news agency. — Reuter.
Berlin: During Thursday's debate in the French Chamber concerning the Franco-Russian alliance pact, M. Herriot made a statement that in the note of May 25, 1935, the German Government, although with some reservations, stated that the Locarno Pact would not be affected by the Franco-Russian Pact.
It is declared by authoritative quarters here that the statement of the former French Premier is in direct contrast with the facts, for the German Memorandum of May 25, 1935, addressed to the signatories of the Locarno Treaty, discussed exhaustively the question whether the treaty obligations which France proposed to undertake towards Soviet Russia would be reconcilable with those of the Locarno Pact, and the conclusion was that the German Government did not think it possible.
Apart from the legal impossibility of this reconciliation, the general political condition would not allow a smooth conciliation. It is known to all the signatory Powers that this is the attitude of Germany, and it is known that this attitude has been expressed by Germany from the very beginning, unaltered until this day. — Trans-Ocean Service.

NAVAL VISIT Japanese Admiral In Colony OFFICIAL CALLS AND SALUTES EXCHANGED

The Japanese cruiser Yubari, carrying Rear-Admiral Inuhara Hosokawa, Commander of the 5th Destroyer Squadron, arrived in port this morning. She fired a general salute of 21 guns, which was replied to by the Fort at Gun Club Hill. H.M.S. Tamar also fired a salute in honour of the visiting Admiral.

The Japanese cruiser fired a further salute of 9 guns when the Japanese Consul left the ship after calling on the Rear-Admiral, and also a salute of 11 guns for Commodore Sedgwick, when he paid an official call.
At 10.45 a.m. Rear-Admiral Hosokawa called on His Excellency the Governor at Government House, where he was received by a Guard of Honour provided by the East Lancashire Regiment. His Excellency returned the call at 11.15 a.m.
The cruiser will remain in port until March 3.

SECRET DOCUMENT LEAKAGE HAS KEY TO RIDDLE BEEN ASCERTAINED? WESTERN POWER INVOLVED

London, To-day.
Private enquiries are understood to have established the fact that the secret Maffey document published by Italy was improperly obtained. Mr. Anthony Eden will make a statement in the House of Commons on Monday next. The Government may decide to publish the document. — Reuter.

Berlin: The Rome correspondent of the "Berliner Tageblatt," reporting on the "Giornale d'Italia's" statement about Mr. Eden's foreshadowed address in the House of Commons, says that he was given to understand where the key to the riddle of the documentary leakage is to be found.
"From quarters customarily best informed, the conjecture is voiced that the document did not reach Rome by any direct way. There are weighty reasons for supposing that the British report was sent to some Western Power that had worked together closely with Britain in the Abyssinian question, for its information."

RAS MULUGETA RETREATS Defensive Position In Mountains HEAT UNSUFFERABLE IN OGADEN PROVINCE

Addis Ababa, To-day.
It is stated here that the Minister of War, Ras Mulugeta, has withdrawn his forces from the Enderta province to some extent, so as to take up stronger defensive positions in the mountains.
The Italians are making new attempts with aeroplanes to supply the garrison of Malake with provisions and ammunition.
From the Somali front the Abyssinians report that Ras Nasibu has made further progress towards Coran. In Ogaden the heat, which grows steadily, has begun, and will become worse till April. As it is already becoming unsufferable, it will severely hamper the activities of the motorised troops. — Trans-Ocean Service.

HIS MAJESTY TO BROADCAST Message To Empire On March 1

London, To-day.
His Majesty the King will broadcast to the Empire at 4 p.m. G.M.T. on March 1. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.
London, later: Reuter learns that the wave length on which the King's speech on March 1 will be broadcast from Daventry station and the times at which recordings will be broadcast will be announced later. — Reuter.

NEW BRITISH COINAGE King Consults Mint Official

London, To-day.
His Majesty the King received the Deputy-Master of the Royal Mint at Buckingham Palace in connection with the new coinage bearing the King's effigy. His Majesty inspected the plaster cast of his head, which is likely to be used for medals as well as coins.
The King also received Viscount Swinton, Secretary of State for Air. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

GENERAL AMNESTY IN SPAIN Approved By Cortes Committee

Madrid, To-day.
The permanent committee of the Cortes has approved the general amnesty, which will probably come into effect to-morrow. — Reuter.

SWISS GOVERNMENT STANDS FIRM

Mr. L. Dunbar, leading owner for many years, is likely to enjoy another successful season at the Valley this year.

BETTING POOLS ON SOCCER English League Games To Be Cancelled?

SENSATIONAL REPORT

London, To-day.
In order to circumvent betting pools the Football League, according to an unofficial statement, has decided on the sensational step of cancelling all fixtures for this week-end and for the remainder of this season, only announcing them two days before the matches are due to be played. The Saturday fixtures will be circulated on Thursday evenings.
Although the League declines to confirm or deny the report, it is assumed to be correct. An official statement will probably be issued in a few days.

The Scottish matches will not be affected. Mr. W. MacAndrew, Secretary of the Scottish League, said that they did not think it worth the trouble. It was unlikely that the Scottish League would take immediate action, but they might do so next season.

The Football League thinks that betting pools are a menace to the game. — Reuter.

HOUSE COLLAPSE IN YAUMATI

After working almost incessantly since 1.45 p.m. on Thursday, the coolies engaged in the excavation work at the scene of the Chinese tenement house collapse in Woosung Street, Yaumati, which occurred last Wednesday morning, completed their labours at about 8 p.m. last night.
No further bodies were found yesterday, though on the previous day seven were recovered from the debris. It will be recalled that the earlier reports were to the effect that about ten people were missing.
On the morning of the collapse six people were removed to the hospital, while on the same evening a blind girl was rescued from the wreckage.

WEATHER FORECAST
Moderate to fresh East winds, cloudy with fog and occasional rain, was the weather forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

HIS THIRD WIN

"HAT TRICK" FOR LIBERTY BAY

Small Crowd Present
For Foochow Cup
RAIN SPOILS SPORT AT ANNUAL RACE MEETING

Unlike last year, the 1936 Annual Race Meeting opened to-day in dismal weather, and only a small crowd witnessed Liberty Bay's third successive win in the Foochow Cup.

The track is in a very soft condition as the result of this morning's downpour, and no record is expected to-day.
Despite the rain, the Jockey Club is a very fine sight, with the flags of the various stables flying above their respective boxes, while the multi-coloured flower plots against the white background of the Grandstand present a striking picture.

A small army of Chinese is strewing straw down on the grass lawns, and there are one or two pools of water to be seen in the inside of the racetrack, but the track does not appear to be greatly affected by the conditions. There is likely to be a certain amount of mud along about, however.

Although the rain will cause several lapses in the generally expected to be carried off by the Valley Stakes.
(Reuter's selections and comments on to-day's races will be found on Page 4.)

Deep shawl sleeves, shirred to the front in the centre front, feature this cocktail frock worn by Heather Angel, the screen actress. The long skirt of heavy crepe is pored to flare. The tunic is made of white crepe threaded with silver.

Silver lace, trimmed with reflecting sequins, worn over a coloured under-dress, lends charm and piquancy to the wearer, Harriet Hilliard, the screen actress. A cluster of coloured gardenias and a silver lame grille at high waistline are the only trimmings.

Cinema Notes

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"
—KING'S THEATRE

Immortal pranksters are those gallant swordsmen, Athos, Por-
thos, Aramis and d'Artagnan, whose lusty frolics are vividly set forth in RKO-Radio's film version of Dumas' "The Three Musketeers."

They checkmate the all-powerful Cardinal Richelieu, and send his men scurrying from the field with pinked breeches, so that, as Por-thos boasts: "They can still bow
to the Cardinal, but not sit down".
Even their most dangerous exploits
are coloured with gaudy comedy.
The sublime, to them, is ever close to the ridiculous. They have avaricious landlords put fat feasts on the cuff, and then take the shirts from their back for good measure. Equally light humoured are their reckless generosities.

The Broadway stage star, Walter Abel, portrays the fiery d'Artagnan, with Paul Lukas, Moroni Olsen and Onslow Stevens, playing his companions in arms, Athos, Portbos and Aramis. The distinguished cast further comprises Margot Graham, Heather Angel,
Jan Keith, Rosamond Pinchet, John Qualen, Ralph Forbes and Nigel de Brulier.

"THE RAIN-MAKERS"
—ALHAMBRA THEATRE

Choosing aridity as a background for rollicking humour, and forsaking urban subtlety for suburban simplicity, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey bring to the screen a new and refreshing type of comedy in "The Rain-makers," their latest R.K.O. feature.

As a "scientist," inventor of a rain-making machine guaranteed to produce anything from a drizzle to a downpour, Woolsey fits into a new role with side-splitting effects on his spectators. In his efforts to make good (and to make rain), he is ludicrously assisted by Wheeler, a dirt farmer at heart whose life is a complex of dust

and brain storms.

The story centres around the desperate efforts of the farmers of Lima Junction to obtain moisture for their parched crops.
Woolsey comes to the rescue with his rainmaking machine, a weird conglomeration of gadgets.

Every variety of storm since Noah's flood follows, not to mention a wild climax in which the crash of two dynamite-laden locomotives threaten to blow Wheeler and Woolsey clear out of Lima county.

The picture has a splendid cast,
including Dorothy Lee, Bertoni Churchill, George Meeker and Fredric Roland.

"SHIPMATES FOREVER"
—QUEEN'S THEATRE

This picture, starring Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler in the leading roles, deals with the life of the Naval Academy, and the subsequent careers of the young men who become after their di-gratuation exactly what the title states, "Shipmates Forever."

Dick in the beginning is a radio singer, who to carry out the traditions of the family gives up his lucrative career to enter Annapolia. By is the orphaned daughter of a Navy family, who to support herself, teaches the children of the officers to dance.

So that the singing and dancing
in the picture fall in naturally.

Though hardly a musical, Dick Powell sings four songs, and the picture is really a powerful drama with music and dancing aptly introduced.

Other well known players in the cast are Lewis Stone, Ross
Alexander, John Arledge, Dick
Foran, Robert Light and, Eddie Acuff.

"PICTURE SNATCHER"
—ORIENTAL THEATRE

James Cagney has never been better than he is in this picture.
He has a role that gives ample scope for his "tough guy," wisecracking antics.

Fresh from prison and fully acquainted with all the best known illegal methods of enfiling houses, Cagney proves to be an ideal "picture snatcher," namely a photographer who makes it his business to take pictures of prominent people in compromising surroundings or positions. Although practically unknown elsewhere, this form of journalism is —or was—quite common in the United States.

Alice White and Patricia Ellis
are the feminine attractions.

"METROPOLITAN"—MAJESTIC
THEATRE

When Lawrence Tibbett, world's foremost baritone, says that he is interested in a native opera for the world, and he will do more than just talk about it.

Tibbett, whose return to films in "Metropolitan" the 20th Century-Fox, has created much comment, and has done as much as any other man to create opera on world subjects for the home stage.
Tibbett, helped launch "The King's Henchman," and sang leading roles in "Peter Ibbetson" and "Emperor Jones." Most recently, he took the leading role in the Metropolitan Opera debut of "Merry Widow," an opera with a story of the New England pilgrims.

Tibbett's new picture, which was produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, traces the life-story of an opera singer, with his triumphs, tragedies, thrills and loves. His song repertoire in the new picture ranges from operatic selections from "Carmen" and Pagli-acci" to the colourful "The Road to Mandalay."

Virginia Bruce is feature opposite Tibbett.

"IN CALIENTE"—STAR

Dolores del Rio, one of the most popular actresses when silent pictures were in vogue, makes as big a success of her part in the First National musical extravaganza,
"In Caliente," as she ever did in any of her silent films.

In addition to Miss del Rio, who shows herself to be a very graceful dancer, the cast includes Edward Everett Horton, who extracts humour from even the flimsiest material, Glenda Farrell (not as a gold-digger) and Pat O'Brien.

O'Brien is cast as the hard-boiled editor of a New York
tabloid newspaper, who in a dramatic moment described Dolores as a "big of bones." He takes a holiday in Mexico and E. E. Horton hires the dancer, whom he mistakes for an adventures, to tone down O'Brien's affection for a pretty blonde, whom he himself covets. Busby Berkeley is responsible for some beautiful dance scenes.

and East took the Ace and returned the ten. South went right in with the King, fearing clubs more than spades. Now South led a heart to dummy's Queen and played back the three of diamonds, East putting on the ten and South the Queen.

Another heart led by South revealed West's original singleton. This gave South ideas.
His contract seemed hopeless,
yet there was a remote chance of making it. East was placed with a heart stopper and with all three diamond honours, only two of which remained. If East also held both high club honours, and if West could be persuaded to lead three rounds of spades, something terrible would happen to East. So South's next move was to lead
the spade nine from dummy
and, in effect, say to West, "Go to it."

West did not think, or at least did not think enough.
After taking the Jack of spades
he laid down the Queen. If he had abandoned spades and led clubs, declarer could not have avoided going down two tricks.
Once he led the spade Queen
the contract could not possibly have been set more than one.

East had discarded his low diamond on the third round of spades; now, on the fourth, he gave up the seven of clubs. Because East still held stoppers in all three suits. A club shift by West would still have saved
the day. But West was too avaricious; he wanted all the tricks he could win as soon as he could win them. So he laid down the last spade.

East did the best he could; he played the club Queen, saving two hearts and the King-Jack of diamonds. South saved one heart and two cards in each of the minor suits. Now, too late, West led a club. The King fell to the Ace, and the Jack, which was established, South called.
East was squeezed again. If he played a diamond, both of South's diamonds would be squeezed. If he played a heart, both of dummy's hearts would be squeezed. "All East" and West took was the spade suit, and the four tricks which it yielded were not enough.

BRIDGE NOTES

Suicide Squeeze

By Ely Culbertson

The suicide squeeze is a rare situation in which one of the defenders squeezes the other, so that declarer finds himself showing a net profit on tricks
which his adversaries win.

The skilful player, when defending, is particularly careful at notrump not to cash an established card without first checking up to make sure that it will not embarrass his partner in discarding. Unless the setting trick is in sight, it is sometimes wise for a defender to forego
the pleasure of taking a trick rather than make his partner's discarding problem too difficult.
When the true squeeze situation occurs, the partner will be unable to let go any card in his hand without forfeiting a future trick.

In to-day's deal the suicide
squeeze was unwittingly applied by one of the defenders, and it resulted in declarer's receiving a present of two tricks.
These two tricks—or some other miracle—were necessary to declarer for his contract,
which was reached by bad bidding.

It is best to pass over the bidding as quickly as possible.
South, having bid one diamond and having received a one-heart response from North, bid one notrump in the fallacious belief that with a minimum of three honour-tricks he should automatically bid one notrump
rather than show distributional support for his partner's suit.
North too boldly raised to two notrump, and South went to three. East, aghast, did not even double.

West opened the spade five

PROTEST AGAINST CHANGE

A suggestion that a Test match should be taken away from Nottingham or Leeds, and played at Lord's, was made at the annual meeting of the Nottingham County Club recently.

Mr. Douglas McCraith, a member of the Nottingham Committee, said no proposal had yet come before the Board of Control, but there were rumours which had foundation.

"The reason for this step is that a match at Lord's would be likely to show more profit than one in the provinces. A more inadequate reason it would be difficult to imagine," said Mr. McCraith.

"The profit made out of Test matches during the Australian tour of 1934 was $46,412. This figure would have started a previous generation, but is not today considered sufficient by some people who are prepared to break with tradition, and to deprive the followers of cricket in the Midlands, or the North, of a chance of seeing a Test match in order to increase them."

"Since the War the Nottinghamshire club has spent $26,700 upon permanent improvements which are superlatively for County games."

FUNERAL PACE

NEW South Wales easily passed South Australia's first innings total when play was continued in the Sheffield Shield match at Sydney.

Reg Robinson played another brilliant innings for 96 and lived up to some dreary play by scoring at almost a run a minute, before he reached his half century, after which he slowed down and his next 40 took 105 minutes.

Batsmen found run-getting difficult, chiefly because of the clever way in which Bradman placed his field, and progressed at such a funeral pace that Fallowfield took nearly three hours to complete his 50.

CLUB &amp; S. CHINA "A" FAVOURED

East Lancs. Favoured
 In the other Semi-Final Round encounter the East Lancashire Regiment, last season's runners-up, should also win, at the expense of the Eastern, who are, however, fielding several newcomers from Canton!

There is a fairly big Second and Third Division League programme as well, but the most important game is the Third Division clash between the Chinese Police, who are at home, and the Fusiliers. The result of this match will probably decide the Junior championship.

The following is Rover's forecast:

GOLF NOTES

(By "NIBLICK")

"HONG" FOURSOMES

A BRACE of first round pairs received a walk-over in the Hong competition at Kowloon. H.K. and Whampoa Dock went the easy way by courtesy of the Police owing to the latter having lost half their team, and the Dairy Farm proceeded to the next round as R. Henderson of the Naval Yard will be on the high seas bound for England before the concluding stages have been reached.

The Godown Coy. arrived on the sixth tee with a hefty deficit of four holes and it looked as though Braley and Gellatley (Sanitary Dept.) would go through easily, however the Godowns managed to stage a comeback and chalked up victory by one hole. A good effort.

The holders, Dodwell and Co. accounted for Senior Clerical and Accounting staff by 3 and 2.

ANNUAL DANCE

THE annual dance of Kowloon Golf Club will be held at the Peninsula Hotel on Friday next from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. This function is more like a family party than a dance and every year sees its popularity growing. I am to remind members that tickets are now ready at $250 each, including supper, reservations for tables to be made direct with the Hotel management.

THE LATE KING AND GOLF

SOME time ago the then Prince of Wales, speaking at a golf club dinner, recalled that the late King played golf many years back. "I can remember," he added, "the time when I used to carry his clubs." (Laughter and applause.) "I think he played a good game," said the Prince, "and I asked him the other day why he did not go on with it, because I feel that golf is a game one goes on playing for a long time. But what he said to me was that he 'got so damned angry'." (loud laughter.) "Surely a good instance of the very human side of the late King's character."

OVERHEARD AT THE NINETEENTH

".....could not tear myself away, Simmy had just started that one about the old maid and the stork!"

".....forgets to count strokes, yes sir, a lot of chaps belong here that don't belong here."

".....Mis' Jelly, missy want che you on telephone, you have go or you no come?"

".....and Jug shot a 63 with an 18 handicap, if they hang him for it he's getting off light."

FRIENDLY HOCKEY ENCOUNTER

In to-day's match, G. C. Moss, the Wanderers' goalkeeper, is unable to participate, and his place will be temporarily filled by H. Shields, the Club's custodian.

The following will represent the Wanderers in to-day's match:—
 H. Shields (Club); K. A. Tremlett (Y.M.C.A.) and G. Sommer (Club); J. E. Potter (Club); J. Farmer (Y.M.C.A.) and E. A. Bates (Y.M.C.A.); S. A. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.) and T. A. D. Whitley (C.R.A.); W. J. Brown (Y.M.C.A.); E. L. Pringle (Club) and D. J. Moor (Y.M.C.A.) (Club).

'NEEDLE' ENCOUNTER AGAINST POLICE

FULL PROGRAMME OF LEAGUE GAMES

ARMY v. NAVY AT KING'S PARK

(By L.B.W.)

DESPITE the many counter-attractions to-day, including the Annual Race Meeting, a full programme of league cricket matches will be carried out, there being no less than seven fixtures on the card, and, although these include three games in the premier division, interest, by way of a change, will be centred on the Indian Recreation Club-Police game in the junior section, as the result of this will have a very important bearing on the ultimate destination of the shield.

The Indians are at present two points ahead of the Police with the same number of matches played, so that a draw will still give them the lead. They will, however, be going all out for a win and for that reason are playing their best team, though J. S. Abdul-Curream, one of their mainstays in the batting department, will not be available.

A. H. Rumjahn, who has not taken part in league cricket at all this season, will make his initial appearance in second division league cricket since he took up the game over 20 years ago, and he should prove an acquisition to the side. The Indians will no doubt look to him for some runs, while others who are expected to compile useful scores are A. Bakar, A. R. Suffiad, A. M. Rumjahn and possibly A. K. Ismail.

The well-versed attack of the L.R.C. is their strongest point and in A. Bakar, M. R. Abbas, A. M. Rumjahn, A. K. Ismail and A. R. Suffiad they have five bowlers who should be able to get the Police out fairly cheaply.

Accustomed as they are to playing on a small ground, the biggest obstacle the Police will be faced with this afternoon is having to play on a ground which is probably double the size of their own plot at Happy Valley. However, in C. F. Alexander, A. Carey, W. E. Meadows and P. Loughlin they have a quartette who may be depended upon to score runs.

I cannot understand why both Meadows and Loughlin have figured so low in their batting order recently for they are the best bats in the side. Loughlin is definitely an opening bat, while Meadows has been known to knock up some high scores when batting No. 4 or 5.

The winning of the toss will again have an extremely important bearing on the result of the game, but I am of the opinion that the Indians will just about do it.

The Other Games

To revert to the senior division; the Hong Kong Cricket Club are at home to the University and should win, though a draw will not come as a surprise. Craighower should have the better of the Civil Service, unless Richardson, Perry and Colledge again get going with the bat, while the game between the Army and Navy at King's Park will probably end in a draw.

In the second division Kowloon should register a win over the R.A.S.C. while the Rectorio and Craighower should take the points from the University and Civil Service respectively.

Selected Teams

Below we give some of the selected teams for this afternoon's matches:—
 The Army—Capt. L. J. Welch (Capt.), Capt. D. W. Perse, Lt. J. E. Johnson, Lt. E. M. Dawson, Lt. J. P. Williams, Lt. G. C. Gerthwaite, Lt. Prichard, C. S. M. Elvin, Col. Ballard, Pte. Herbert and Pte. Whitehead.

L.R.C. 2nd XI—A. K. Ismail, M. R. Abbas, A. H. Rumjahn, E. T. Bakar, A. Bakar, A. R. Suffiad, F. M. el Arrouli, A. K. Suffiad, A. M. Rumjahn, M. I. Bakar and M. Afzal.

Police—C. F. Alexander, B. G. Baker, W. L. Clark, L. Oakley, D. Danbrowsky, W. E. Meadows, C. Pope, A. E. Carey, G. Carruthers, T. R. Hunter and P. Loughlin.
 H.R.C.C.—A. W. Hayward (capt.), L. D. Kilbee, H. Owen-Hughes, A. C. Growder, I. McInnes, G. S. Dumbley, E. W. Barnes, E. D. Gillespie, L. S. Forbes, V. Bond and G. E. R. Dwyer.

JUMPED TO FAME

M'Avoy has jumped into the "big money" class and, with the exception of Joe Louis, is probably the most talked of boxer in the squared circle. Certainly the spotlight has been turned on him with all its power in New York. M. J. Rodden in the Toronto Globe.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY CLASSIC THIS AFTERNOON

They lost their first international match of the season when the All Blacks beat them by 18 points to 8 and they suffered their second reverse at the hands of Wales, who won by 13 points to 3 a fortnight ago.

Sensational Triumph

Ireland likewise suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of the All Blacks when they lost by 17 points to 9, but they atoned for this by their sensational triumph over England recently.

The Ireland side to-day is identical to that which defeated England at Dublin last Saturday, with the exception that O'Connor (University College) will replace F. G. Moran.

The teams are:—
 Scotland—D. S. Kerr (Heriordonians); C. W. C. Murdoch (Hillhead High School, F. P.); R. C. S. Dick (Guy's Hospital); R. O. Murray (Cambridge University); R. J. E. Whitworth (London Scottish); E. Shaw (Glasgow High School); W. E. Logan (Edinburgh Wanderers); G. E. Griev (Kelso); A. Druiett (Edinburgh Wanderers); J. A. Waters (Selkirk); J. Beattie (Glasgow); W. A. Burns (West of Scotland); Cooper, Duff, Weston (Kelvinside Academicals).

Ireland—L. M. Malcolmson (North of Ireland); C. V. Boyle (Dublin University); L. B. McMahon (University College, Dublin); A. H. Bailey (University College, Dublin); O'Connor (University College); V. A. Hewitt (Glasgow); C. J. Morgan (Clontarf); R. Alexander (Ulster); C. E. St. J. Beamish (R.A.F. and North of Ireland); S. Doering (Beccles Rangers); C. R. A. Graves (Wanderers); J. Russell (University College, Cork); J. A. E. Higgins (Belfast Services); S. Walker (Astonians).

The Races

Our times nowadays are far removed from those spacious days when "The Races," in centres out East, meant a total stoppage of all ordinary business and a holiday for the staffs of all the commercial houses. True, the banks still shut their lordly portals on racing days; and it is a solemn thought that Cousin Sadie from Baltimore, passing through on a President liner, may have some difficulty in securing funds against a letter of credit unless she happens to do so before 12 noon. But a little thing like that need not worry us unduly. And of course, nowadays there is the depression. One can hardly close the office for the afternoon and call it a day when one's horrid competitors are out scouting after the little business there is to be done with their usual vigour; so that somebody must be left in charge, even if it is only the youngest junior assistant or the office boy.

But there is still scope for that light-hearted, carefree holiday mood which the advent of "The Races" still seems to inspire in the most sober tai-pan breast. It is common knowledge that the head of the firm has been known to give a lingering glance at his elegant morning coat and top-hat, wishing wistfully that custom out here might allow him to array himself in all that lavish finery, which generally rests in the drying-room or among moth-balls, for race meetings. And there is a great deal to be said in its favour. Why should the lordly male be debarred, by a senseless custom, from emulating his better half and arraying himself in all his finery for "The Races"? If Madame can seize upon the occasion—and, alas, she always does—to cajole a new party frock out of the wage-earner, why should not that poor misguided man also bask in unusual finery? Why not the lavender or fougard tie, the buff waistcoat, the grey striped trousers and the morning coat—to say nothing of those dazzling appendages (if they can be called that), the glossy top hat, grey spats, lemon-coloured gloves and silver-headed cane? Why not, indeed? We have all the other appurtenances here: green lawns, beautiful beds of flowers, bandmen in the ruddiest scarlet playing selections from "The Mikado"—and, of course, the horses. We also have the cutest little jockeys in their shiny top-boots, and this year no less than seven from Shanghai. We have a beautiful racecourse set in a cup of the greenest wooded hills you ever saw. It is time the mere male asserted himself a little more in these matters. "The Races" imply the holiday spirit; all that is missing is the holiday garb, on the part of the males. Won't somebody give the lead?

One case each of enteric fever and cerebro-spinal fever were reported to the local Health authorities in the 24 hours ended on Thursday.

FAMOUS FILM STAR ARRIVES

First Visit To China Of Anna May Wong.
A "THRILLING EMOTIONAL EXPERIENCE"

The U.S. President Grant yesterday brought to Hong Kong the famous Hollywood film-star, Anna May Wong, who was born in America of Cantonese parents and who is making her first visit to China. She was met on arrival by her sister, who will be remembered by many for her sympathetic interpretation of the leading feminine role in "Eskimo."

Miss Wong was the target for a battery of cameras on arrival, when she posed on deck with her sister and two charming local film stars, after which she went on board the Hong Kong Hotel lunch and crossed the harbour to the Hotel, when she is at present staying. Later she met her father, now 76 years of age, and dined in his company.

To a representative of the China Mail Miss Wong said that it was a thrilling emotional experience to her to be visiting at last the land of her forefathers. She had come at the invitation of the Nanking Government, to study Chinese life and customs, eventually to take back her knowledge to Hollywood, where she could correct so much that was false and fantastic in American-made films dealing with Chinese matters. She intended to stay in China for at least a year and did not expect to return to Hollywood before the Autumn of next year.

BORN IN LOS ANGELES
Born in Los Angeles, China Town, Miss Anna May Wong's real name is Wong Jing-tsung, which in English means "Frosted Yellow Willow."

When 14 years old she was very much in demand by film producers for "Oriental" parts. Her first real chance came when she secured a role with Lon Chaney in "Bits Of Life," but it was as the slave girl in "The Thief Of Bagdad" that she came into the limelight. Her second successful appearance was in "Shanghai Express," and she has since been given leading roles in many American pictures.

Miss Wong has also appeared on the stage in London and acted in many British films, including "Piccadilly" and "Flame Of Love."

BY an order of the Superior Court of Dougherty County, Georgia, dated at Albany, June 8, 1934, J. A. Davis' wire-haired terrier was officially incorporated. A petition for the charter was published in the official gazette of the county during the month of May and petition was presented and heard before a judge, who signed the order making Adrian's Peg "a body politic under the name of Adrian's Peg, Inc."

PRESENTING themselves as Mexico's most prolific parents, Spencer and Sonora Leon Chavarria appeared in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, with their astounding family. In forty years, Senora Chavarria bore 37 children by one husband—23 boys and 14 girls. There were 18 pairs of twins.

FALSE PRETENCES CHARGE

Accused In Court On Stretcher

Stated to have swallowed ring handles, spoons, a knife and a ring while on remand in prison, George Brooks, aged 28, salesman, of no fixed abode, was carried into Bow-street court on a stretcher. He was charged on remand with obtaining a suit and an overcoat by false pretences.

A detective said Brooks had been brought to court because he refused an operation. Brooks was remanded.

Here There and Everywhere

DENKIN TO VISIT LONDON

Recently General Denkin, the former hope of the White Russians in their struggle against the Bolsheviks, came from the obscurity of his Brussels home to lecture to his compatriots in London on "Patriotism from the Viewpoint of Soviet Actualities and Emigrant Psychology."

The General, who is now 70, has taken little part in public affairs for some years, but, in spite of poverty and exile, he has never lost his dignity.

In the civil war of 1919, when he was being backed, or rather half backed, by the British Government, he once came very near to success.

Ruggedly honest and totally lacking in political subtlety, he blamed the English Government, which had raised his hopes without fulfilling them, for his failure. He sent back to the British War Office the British decorations, including the K.C.M.G., which he had been given for his war services.

NEW ARCHITECTURE DEFENDED

1935 WAS A VINTAGE YEAR AT HOME

ELEGANT NEW EDIFICES DISCLOSE MODERN SPIRIT IN BUILDING

(By Prof. C. H. Reilly)

For those who believe in the more pompous Georgian, what is called "the New Architecture," 1935 has been a vintage year. For those who still cling to traditional forms and like to erect their buildings in fancy dress of other centuries it has been, on the whole, a bad year, except in the suburbs.

There imitation Tudor still flourishes. Little villas, though their interiors have modern bathrooms and electric stoves, as well as space very often for the modern motor-car, are still being erected with their exteriors trying to be like those of 400 years ago, when timber was our chief building material and pieces of glass bigger than four inches square were hard to come by.

It is an old obsession, but a very widespread one. Sebastian Sentiment

Though their private lives may be spotless, vast numbers of Englishmen to-day take pleasure in having the house in which they live looking as though it wanted to shelter at least one episode, if a minor one, in the life of Henry VIII.

No doubt it is an expression of romantic longing, but it is an expression repeated many hundreds of times in exactly similar shapes down many thousands of new roads. If anyone needed proof that we are a nation of sentimentalists, our new suburbs would give it a glance.

Our bankers, too, would furnish a further proof, for they, like the inhabitants of the Tudor devocotes, love dressing-up.

Facing Dress

The facing dress they choose for their town banks is generally of the time of Charles II. For their country offices they prefer slits. "But mother, I heard daddy telling the maid that she was an angel. Will she fly?"

"Yes, my darling, she will fly away the first thing to-morrow."

RACING

Race No. 3.—Maiden Stakes
In this race confined to Griffins of the current season over six furlongs, Forrest View (Mr. Wong), Laughing Girl (Mr. Deitz) Royal Consort (Mr. Harriman) and Honeymoon Eve (Mr. Needa) will be the main contenders. These are all fast ponies, but I rather fancy Honeymoon Eve.

Mr. Frost will probably take out Boolat Bay. She is quite good, but more suitable over a longer distance. Mr. Encarnacion will ride Donovan, but this pony can be left alone.

Race No. 4.—The Sydney Maiden Stakes

This race over six furlongs will provide plenty of thrills and a very close finish. If the track is fast, we may see the record smashed by at least two seconds, as practically all the best flyers are in this event.

Nothing reliable is known about Able Warrior (Mr. D. S. Li), but those who are prepared to take a gamble might find a bet each way profitable. Electron (Mr. Frost) will set the pace over the first half mile, but her last-quarter finish may be the cause of her downfall. Holiday Eve (Mr. Needa) is more suitable for a longer race, but watch out, as she is capable of winning. Violet Queen (Mr. Y. T. Fung) is very speedy, but is inclined to bore out.

Zodiac (Mr. Pih) is the best bet. She is very fast, and I look to her to win this race.

Race No. 5.—The China Stakes

In this sprint event we have three well tried and fast ponies in King's Fanny (Mr. Marshall), Oak Bay (Mr. Frost) and Soldier of Britain (Mr. D. S. Li). I don't think we need look further than these to fill the three positions.

Soldier of Britain, with Mr. Deitz up, had a win against Oak Bay (Mr. Frost) over the same distance last year, and I think she will do it again. Oak Bay has not been seen very often on the track, but he is certainly very fit. It must, however, be remembered that Oak Bay holds the record over five furlongs for China ponies.

Mr. Needa will probably take out Macaroni, but I am afraid the pace will be too fast for him. Harvest View may also start, with Mr. Wong up.

Race No. 6.—Wong Nei Chong Stakes (Second Section)

I had expected to see Wild Cat reserved for the Valley Stakes. With Mr. Wong up, I cannot see any other pony to touch her. Lancashire Loom (Mr. Harriman) is good, and so is Ocean View (Mr. Liang).

Rugby Star (Mr. D. S. Li) is liable to cause an upset here, and Stopwatch (Mr. Black), although small, has a distinct chance.

Mr. Frost will pilot The Hero, and should put up a good fight.

Race No. 7.—The Sydney Maiden Stakes (Second Section)

The best ponies in this section are Strathroy (Mr. Black) A Grand Time (Mr. Pote-Hunt) The Dunlin (Mr. Frost) and Yo Ho (Mr. Marshall), and I strongly fancy Strathroy. He is capable of breaking the record.

A Grand Time will be very near at the finish, and The Dunlin should fill a place.

The distance may be too short for Yo Ho, but keep him in mind for a longer race. Ranger is improving, and he will probably be worth watching later.

Race No. 8.—The Trial Plate

This race will serve as pointer to the likely Derby winner. I understand that Mr. Harriman will reserve Royal Scot for the main event on Monday, in which event, providing Rosemary is not starting, Bear Claw (Mr. Frost) ought to win.

King's Sceptre (Mr. Marshall) will issue a strong challenge, and should fill second place. Royal Wedding Eve (Mr. Needa) may not be strong enough to give much opposition.

Race No. 9.—The Valley Stakes

A careful study of the training for the past two months suggests that The Gorilla (Mr. Frost) ought to win, but the draw for positions is an important factor.

Gold Sovereign (Mr. G. U. da Roza) is definitely a strong contender for a win in this race, but I am inclined to believe that his

HUGE AIR LINERS AS BOMBERS

GERMANY'S LATEST "CONVERTIBLE"

Germany's new high-speed medium-weight air liner, the Heinkel 111, shown publicly for the first time a few weeks ago, has certain features evidently designed to facilitate conversion to military purposes. There is room in the nose of the fuselage for a gunner's cockpit, and no doubt it has been designed with this in view.

Like the Heinkel 70, a smaller machine, it has performance capabilities far above those required in a commercial machine.

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

Nearly 200 air pilots are to be trained to command the fleet of flying boats which are being prepared for the Atlantic service.

These men, nearly four times the number of captains and first officers at present employed on the Empire air routes, will be trained at the Air University at Hants, Southampton, during the next four years.

It will be almost two years before regular passenger services will begin over the Atlantic, and not until 1938 can we look forward to regular daily "sailings" on a large scale.

slowness over the first half mile may make it difficult for him to catch up in the last quarter rush.

Cassius (Mr. Proulx) should not be overlooked, as this small pony is capable of a fast last quarter, and I can see him giving The Gorilla a good fight.

Race No. 10.—The Old Course Plate

Over a mile and a quarter, I think Cossack's Beauty (Mr. Wong) ought to win.

Mr. D. S. Li will take out Sadko. This pony is very fit at the moment, and if she can keep within striking distance over the first mile, her last quarter rush may be too fast for the others.

Hettman, with Mr. Marshall up, may find the distance a little too long. Monoplane (Mr. Fung) is in fine condition just now, and may possibly fill third place. Mr. Needa has been riding Mayflower in the morning training, and may cause an upset.

Race No. 11.—The Bendigo Stakes

On form, Vixen Tor (Mr. Proulx) should be the favourite, but a strong challenge will be forthcoming from both Shooting Star (Mr. D. S. Li) and Halcyon (Mr. Frost).

The holder of the mile record for Australian ponies, Sancy Face (Mr. Pih) is also in this race. She seems to be in good trim. Derby Day (Mr. Deitz) will probably set the pace over the first half mile, but she is not capable of a strong finish over this distance.

Race No. 12.—The New Stables Plate

King's Warden, with Mr. Marshall up, is the likely winner over this medium distance. Next comes Gladiator (Mr. Needa), but let it be remembered that these two ponies clashed once before over a mile, and Gladiator, with Mr. Frost up, won. King's Justice (Mr. Harriman) is capable of extending the others, and will probably fill the third place, though Bright View (Mr. Wong) will be in the running.

UNIFIED AIR EXPRESS SERVICE

New York.—Unification of air lines' and air-rail lines' express services to provide high-speed shipping service to and from every point in the United States and 32 foreign countries was announced by Mr. L. O. Head, president of Railway Express Agency, recently.

The new Heinkel is fitted with two engines of 660 h.p., and it is no secret that these are to be replaced by two of 880 h.p., which, for the conveyance of 10 passengers at a cruising speed of some 240 miles an hour, makes it a costly proposition.

British "Convertibles"

In performance it does not appear to be quite so good as a new British twin-engine medium bomber now on order. Although performance figures are not divulged, it is certain that the British machine is quite as fast, and will have a greater range than the Heinkel. It will do this on two engines, each of 430 h.p.

This British machine was first designed and built as a civil aeroplane. The design, not the machine itself, has been adapted. Convertibility of commercial aeroplanes to bombers is not a new idea, but unless the design is planned for this object it will not be possible to convert in a hurry.

Three British military biplanes, just delivered to the Spanish Government, are an adaptation from the well-known D.H. "Dragon Rapide" air liner. In this case important structural alterations were involved to provide machine gun stations and complete bombing equipment.

British air liners hitherto have not been designed for rapid conversion to military uses. Economy in cost and maintenance, rather than great speed and climbing power, have been the main considerations. Speaking generally, their chief use in war time would be work behind the lines.

OLD AEROPLANE FIND

An old Maurice Farman Longhorn aeroplane, fitted with an 80 horse-power Renault engine, which was found in Cornwall, is now being rebuilt by the South Coast Flying Club.

AERIAL "STORES SHIPS" NOW USED

KEEPING UNITS SELF-CONTAINED

The use of big aircraft as storeships is a new method discovered for keeping a unit self-contained in the field.

It has increased the effectiveness of British L.A.F. units in outlying regions.

In Arabia, for instance, operations from the scene of active operations has enabled a squadron to remain months.

All small aircraft cruising in the East are now being converted into storeships. A squadron of Hawker Hart biplanes, India, to Singapore to transport machines took all the space needed to make the flight complete. transport aeroplanes followed along as overland.

CHEAPER AND SAFER OCEAN AIRLINES

SUGGESTED CABLE AND AIRWAYS LINKS FOR TRAVEL

(By A Special Aviation Correspondent) London.

I sat in a London club recently talking with a tall, upright, white-haired man whose ideas may revolutionise transoceanic air travel and communication. He was Mr. F. G. Creed, the inventor (among other things) of the Creed-printing telegraphic systems and the teleprinter, which enable a typewriter operated in London to reproduce typescript, say, in Manchester.

Mr. Creed's latest invention, on which he began work as far back as 1918, is designed to create cheaper and safer ocean airways by means of floating landing stages, and smaller floating wireless beacons, both of which would incorporate cable relay stations.

The Creed seadrome is a simplified design which it is claimed can be constructed and anchored in position at an estimated cost of from £300,000 to £500,000. Each seadrome would provide an aeroplane runway 1,500 feet long and 200 feet wide, with a central platform 500 feet across.

Each would have accommodation for passengers and crews, a meteorological station, storage of aircraft and fuel, and for repair shops; and if necessary crude oil refuelling supplies for ships.

The accommodation floors and landing platform, supported high above the water by floats, are designed to remain steady even in the wildest storms, when it is claimed the largest waves would pass harmlessly beneath.

Tolls And Fuel

The inventor considers it desirable to make seadrome provision for all types of aircraft capable of flying the overwater distance between them safely, thus encouraging their use by private as well as commercial and mail planes; and so providing for an increase in revenue from tolls, sale of fuel, and other services.

With his knowledge of the cable services, Mr. Creed holds that seadromes should follow the direct tracks of the transoceanic submarine cables.

Where it is not desired to make a landing but only to have wireless and visual guidance for aeroplanes, a much smaller anchored floating station could be provided at a tenth of the cost of a seadrome.

Such a station would serve as a submarine cable repeater station, carry a powerful beacon light and wireless equipment for guiding aircraft, and accommodate comfortably a staff of ten.

Speedier Cables
The important feature of this scheme is the link up with cables. Even in these days of wireless communication, the submarine cable claims certain definite advantages; once laid, it is cheaper to operate than wireless, and it possesses the great advantage of secrecy. It cannot be listened in to, as can messages sent by wireless.

There is, however, a definite time lag in the long transoceanic cable transmission. The insertion of one midway repeater station can multiply the speed four times.

Five relay cable stations placed at equal intervals along the route of a Transatlantic cable between England and Newfoundland or Nova Scotia would multiply the speed of transmission 20 times. Each cable so treated could provide 20 duplex teleprinter channels between Europe and America for private rental to commercial houses.

In addition, a general reduction in telegraph tariffs could be made.

With submarine telegraph communications throughout the world today almost exclusively in the hands of English-speaking peoples, especially those of the British Empire, Mr. Creed considers that Great Britain, by use of seadromes and floating repeater stations, could strengthen her trade communication position throughout the whole world and provide the world's chief international communication service.

Empire Air Chain
With a chain of seadromes established along the Empire routes, regular Empire services could be maintained without the need to land upon or cross foreign soil or foreign inland waters.

Completely private and cheaper telephonic communication by submarine cable could be extended to Canada, the United States, Gibraltar, Egypt, India, and eventually to Australia and New Zealand.

To join up the whole Empire by the Creed method would require an expenditure of from £15,000,000 to £20,000,000, an expenditure which would increase employment in the engineering and many other industries.

AIRPORT MATERIAL EXHIBITION

The Society of British Aircraft Constructors held a conference of airport owners and operators on January 30 and 31 and February 1, at British Industries House, Marble Arch, attended by representatives of local authorities.

SHARE MARKET

Messrs. Harriman's
Weekly Report

Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon to-day states—

The market was on the quiet side during the week under review due principally to the approach of the Annual Race meeting, which commanded most attention as is usual at this time of the year! Apart from Racing topic there was another bright spot on the map
 i.e. Hong Kong Electricity which was suddenly marked up nearly three points on the declaration of bonus issue of new shares i.e. of one new share for every three old shares. They touched $75.75 at one time but closed quieter at $74.25. Hong Kong Trams again eased off with shares offering at $12.75
 but there were several small buyers at $12.60. Hong Kong Lands were on offer at $35.
 without attracting buyers, due to the decreased final dividend of i.e. $1 per share as compared with $1 1/4 last year. Telephones (old) had enquiries at $25.80 with small business done at $26. Dairy Farms receded slightly to a buying rate of $21 1/2. Wharves (old) could be obtained at $99. Minor issues again eased off somewhat.
 Hotels came to business at the reduced rate of $5. China Lights (old) again fluctuated between $11.30 and $11.10. The new shares being in demand at $8. Cements were dealt in at $3.85 and Providents (old) at $1.65. Ropes were rather easy with shares on offer at $5 1/2.
 Mining issues attracted some attention. Antamoks were done at $1.75/85, Baguio Gold at $22/20, Benguet Consolidated at $18.50/75 and Raubs at $11.60. Sterling counters were a shade easier with Unions on offer at $55 1/2, while Hong Kong Banks changed hands at the slightly reduced rate of $1.580. The tone of the market at the close is quiet with a very steady undertone.

 Business during the week has been done at the following prices:—

H.K. Banks $1.580.
 Antamoks $1.75/85.
 H.K. Tramways $12.60/12.50.
 Lights (old) $11.20/11.35.
 Lights (new) $8.
 H.K. Electric $72 1/2/75.
 Baguio Gold 22/20 cts.
 Providents (old) $1.65.
 Benguet Consolidated $18.50/75.
 H.K. Hotels $5.00.
 Cements $3.85.
 Dairy Farms $21 1/2/22.
 Telephone (old) $26.
 H. K. Stock Exchange Weekly
 Report issued at 3.15 p.m. yesterday.

The market during the week under review was on the quiet side
 but there was no pressure to sell in some cases prices gave way a little which induced buyers to take up any shares offering.

EASE OFFIMMEDIATE OUTLOOK FAVOURABLE

Messrs. White, Weld and Company, New York Correspondents for Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company, report:—

Stocks:—After an advance during the last couple of days, the market to-day was inclined to ease off and, the volume of business
 though still on the heavy side,
 was less than the turnover yesterday. We are of the opinion that the immediate outlook is favourable. Business done: 3,020,000 shares.

Cotton:—Further sales of the Pool's "spot" cotton are being hedged by buyers. The principal support to-day seems to be covering of March cotton by trade shorts. Large interests are heavily buying July contracts and selling October. A switch looks moderately attractive.

Flash:—The American Railway Association estimates carloadings
 for the past week at 631,000 cars, an increase of 50,000 cars from the corresponding period of last year.

Cram's estimate of automobile production in the United States

 indicates 62,813 units against 73,170 units the previous week.

Miss Anna May Wong, (above), the famous film star, arrived in Hong Kong yesterday by the s.s. President Grant.

THE identification of watermarks without damage to the stamp under investigation is always a matter of concern to the serious stamp collector. From time to time philatelic publications note the tendency of inks used in the printing of a stamp to "bleed" when treated with benzine in the process of identifying the watermark. An attempt to find acceptable substitutes for benzine would, from this standpoint, seem a profitable line of experimentation.

Watermarking a paper is usually accomplished by rendering portions more transparent or more opaque. Agents adapted to rendering these marks more distinguishable would therefore serve as aids in the identification of the watermark on a stamp.

Such an agent should have the following properties:

1. It should have a definite selectivity in its absorption by the watermarked or the unwatermarked portion of the stamp.

2. It should be a colourless liquid to avoid colouring the stamps used in it.

3. It should have a high volatility in order to assure rapid drying of the stamp after treatment.

4. It should be relatively inexpensive and readily available through the retail trade, such as drug stores or paint dealers.

5. It should leave no residue after evaporation.

6. It should not effect, appreciably, the gum on the stamp.

7. It should not have a solvent effect on the ink of the stamp nor the cancellation.

8. It should, preferably be non-inflammable and non-toxic.

A survey of liquids which might meet most of these requirements yielded the following: benzene, 180 proof alcohol, carbon tetrachloride, chloroform, acetone, benzol, carbon disulphide, ethyl acetate, amyl acetate and ether.

British Issues

THE public notice announcing the issue of the first British 4d. stamp was dated July 24, 1855, and the stamp was issued on the 31st of that month. It was rendered necessary by the reduction in the rate of postage to France from 10d. to 4d. and therefore replaced the 10d. embossed stamp.

The design, simple as it was, achieved both beauty and dignity, in fact to the unprejudiced mind, both this and the first 6d. and 1s. regarded purely as designs, may well appear to be superior to the 1d. and 2d. of the line-engraved series, the rectangular character of the designs of the latter giving them a stiffness that is absent from the earliest surface-printed stamps.

There were two main types of paper used for the early 4d. stamps and three different watermarks, the Small, Medium and Large, Garter-Smith to act as Land Officer in

DR. C. T. WANG IN HONG KONG

Rotary Dinner-Party At H.K. Hotel

VISIT TO SOUTH ENTIRELY NON-POLITICAL

Dr. C. T. Wang, State Councillor of the National Government and member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, arrived in Hong Kong yesterday by the s.s. President Grant, and is now staying at the Hong Kong Hotel. He was met on the ship's arrival by Professor Forster, President of the local Rotary Club, and other personal friends.

In an interview with members of the press, Dr. Wang said that his programme had been completely upset by his failure to reach Canton by air on Monday last, when the plane was compelled to turn back owing to bad weather. He hoped to have visited Canton before coming on to Hong Kong to address the Rotary Club on Tuesday, but now he would stay in Hong Kong over the week end, leaving probably on Monday morning for Canton, where he would address the Rotary Club of Canton, and return here on Tuesday, when he would go on to Swatow if there were a steamer available.

Rotarian, Not Political

Dr. Wang said that his visit was entirely Rotarian, he being Governor of the 31st District of Rotary, which embraces China, Hong Kong and the Philippines. His visit had nothing to do with that of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross.

Asked if there was any truth in the suggestion that he had been sent to try to persuade Mr. Hu Han-min to go to Nanjing, Dr. Wang said that he could state positively that he was on no official mission, though he personally hoped that Mr. Hu would accept the invitation of the Nanjing Government.

Olympic Athletes

Dr. Wang, who is Chairman of Committee of the China National Amateur Athletic Federation, stated that the Chinese contingent of athletes for the coming Olympic games, numbering 158 in all, would leave Shanghai on a German ship about the middle of June.

Dr. Wang was the guest of honour at the annual dinner of the Rotary Club of Hong Kong, which was held at 8 o'clock last night at the Hong Kong Hotel, Professor Forster presiding.

Written By Washington

Its author was George Washington, and it was written as a kind of introduction for the aviator to the citizens of the neighbourhood in which he happened to land. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh also carried a letter of identification from prominent citizens of St. Louis, when he flew to Paris.

Estonia—After much discussion the stamps that had been prepared with a portrait of President Paerli were rejected on the ground of poor execution. New plates have been ordered, but the printings from them will not be ready for issue before April.

France—We are advised that the Doumer, Briand and 1 f. 50 Normandie stamps are all obsolete (the two former having been off sale for some time) and that the 1 f. 50 Cardinal Richelieu would very shortly be sold out.

Today's Short Story

A Pair Of Trousers

By Hardie Matthew

TO be without flannel trousers on a holiday is like trying to play football in a silk hat—at least so it seems to me. There is something of the holiday spirit woven into their texture. They are a symbol of freedom and relaxation.

So when I discovered, in unpacking my clothes at the hotel, that I had left mine at home, I was annoyed.

I came down to the hotel lounge, entered into desultory conversation with a stout, middle-aged gentleman sitting there, and before very long found myself telling him of my predicament.

He smiled reminiscently. "I know of a case where the lack of that essential garment was very much more disastrous," he said.

He had a story to tell, and I saw he was determined I should hear it. He leaned back in the easy chair and started off.

A certain Mr. Robotham was at his tailor's ordering a new suit. He had chosen the material—a dark blue dressy cloth, and the head cutter was running a tape round his chest and waist and calling out the measurements over the wood and glass partition of the fitting room.

Mr. Robotham, though not old—he would be about forty or so—did not possess that slim, elegant figure which tailors delight to portray on their advertisements. His waist measurement, in fact, exceeded that of his chest, always an ominous sign. To fit him well called for some care.

Besides, Mr. Robotham detested ordering new suits. He detested choosing cloth, he never felt certain he was going to like it, but most of all he detested being measured. At the same time, he was rather particular about his appearance. Lots of men are like that!

So it was with special care that the head cutter noted the length of his sleeve, the opening of his vest, and his particular requirements as to pockets.

"Now about the trousers," began Mr. Robotham, frowning.

But at the word trousers the head cutter winced visibly, as at something not quite decent. A pained expression crossed his face, and he backed hastily out of the fitting-room.

"Trousers!" he called loudly outside. Robotham should have known, of course, that head cutters definitely ignore the existence of this necessary, but lowly, garment. To have anything to do with it would be grossly undignified and flouting tradition.

The call for "Trousers" was echoed up some distant back stairway like the wail of the banshee. The response to it was not so ethereal. There was a loud clatter and rumble as of a platoon of Guardsmen in full marching order tumbling downstairs. A heavy, determined tread crept nearer, and the fitting-room door was flung open to admit a tall, gaunt young man with unruly sandy hair and cadaverous countenance.

MONDAY'S STORY

Monday's story will be "Art Claims The Artist," by Alex Barber.

It was the trousers cutter and trimmer, Macpherson by name, but also answering, during business hours, to "Trousers."

"I don't want those Oxford bag affairs," said Robotham, beginning to feel irritated for no reason at all—unless it was a premonition of what was to happen later.

"No, no! I'll see to that," replied Macpherson affably, running his tape up and down and round about Robotham's legs.

"But I don't want to look as if I were wearing a couple of drain pipes."

"That'll be a' right. I ken fine what ye want." Macpherson's reply was meant to be soothing, but it only added to Robotham's vague irritation.

"And if they hang like concertinas round my ankles, I won't have them, that's all!" he cried.

But Macpherson was imperturbable. He patted Robotham's arm confidentially.

"I'll see ye get a real smart pair o' breeks," he said. "Just leave it tae me," and nodded sagely.

Whereupon Mr. Robotham, in a rage, promptly bounced out of the room and out of the shop.

But then something like that always happened to him when he ordered a suit.

Macpherson, meanwhile, retreated up the stairs to his lair. It lay half-way between the workrooms and the shop itself, where the all-important coats were cut.

Its position symbolised the importance of trousers in a suit of clothes, at least to a tailor. They were above the humble workroom, but had not attained the stature and dignity of a coat.

Not that Macpherson was content to be cutting nothing but trousers. On the contrary, he spent all his spare moments chalking out coats of all sizes and shapes on any suitable bit of cloth by way of practice.

In due course the cloth for Mr. Robotham's trousers arrived up the stairs for Macpherson to cut. By some mistake, however, the coat measures accompanied it instead of the trouser ones.

BOY FALLS INTO HARBOUR

Life Saved By Postman On His Round

When a seven-year-old boy fell into Portimador (Casuarina) Harbour, recently, Leslie Macmillan, a postman, left his letter-bag on the quay and plunged fully clothed into the water. He swam with the child to the quayside, and both were rescued by a boat. Macmillan finished his delivery of letters before changing his clothes.

Bay Windows

On the outside these bay windows, one above the other, form big columns of glass running up the building and they light up magnificently at night.

Perhaps the most striking point in these new ferro-concrete structures is the way roofs, balconies, and staircases can be cantilevered out into space with apparently nothing to support them.

In the flats mentioned there are a pair of staircases with twelve landings one above the other flying out from the building in this way, and the stair climbing up from one to the other. Nothing could be more dramatic.

Fine Confusion

In the new Bexhill Pavilion, by Erich Mendelsohn, the leading German architect, and his English partner, Serge Chermayeff, who won the open competition for the work, one wide stair rises in a graceful unsupported spiral in the centre of a great cylinder of glass, while another is suspended from the roof in the same way.

No wonder the retired colonels of Bexhill are writing to the papers complaining of the great white monster which has suddenly appeared among their red villas. One, with fine confusion of ideas, calls it "this Epstein stuff." He might as well apply this elegant term to the modern streamlined car in comparison to the first Ford.

But perhaps the best thing of all is the new Orient liner, the s.s. Orion, which started cruising this year. Its interior, by a young architect, Brian O'Rourke, is the first interior of a big English ship which is free from all garish detail, imitation Louis-Quinze, and such like. It is as clean and elegant as a new car, and represents a revolution in British ship design.

Elephant House

Last year, when deciding the best piece of modern architecture, I gave the palm to the oval Penguin House in the Zoo with its graceful cross ramps like wings for the birds to walk up. This year I might have given it to the Elephant House at Whipsnade. It is so monumental in shape and so suited to its giant inhabitants, yet built in the same ferro-concrete.

This year I think the best new house for humans at any rate, is one at Weymouth, in Surrey, by Oliver Hill. It is a white structure of contrasting curves which fits into the landscape as well as any old one, and yet is completely modern in its design and as delicate and elegant as a piece of late Georgian silver.

It is, indeed, a fine new life our young architects are preparing for the next generation, and one we of this world be wise enough to welcome.

A Pair Of Trousers

Macpherson, of course, should have clattered downstairs in his clumsy way and got the right ones, but the temptation to indulge in a little practice was too great to resist. Indeed, since Macpherson had seen this Robotham and knew his build, it was a heaven-sent opportunity.

He decided he would have half an hour's practice in cutting a coat which would be superior, in his own opinion, to anything that the firm had yet turned out. Besides, this Robotham fellow had chosen a dark blue cloth which would show up the chalk marks to perfection.

Macpherson removed his coat, took a new cake of chalk, and prepared to spend an entrancing half-hour.

Scotsmen, it is generally supposed, are a hard-headed, careful, materialistic people; in fact, rather dour and dogged. The supposition is erroneous! They are dreamers and highly imaginative. Macpherson had visions of eventually becoming a coat cutter himself one day, and to wish for, and dream of, a possibility long enough is, in the end, to make it come true.

So as he worked diligently with square, chalk and tape he was no longer a mere trouser cutter and trimmer, he was a head cutter in one of the best-class tailors in the country, and recognised, moreover, as a very clever man at his job. Customers came and begged Macpherson to cut their coats. Unless Macpherson gave them his personal attention they simply walked out of the shop. His salary was fabulous.

At the same time, it gave him a sense of deep satisfaction to get the correct run of a shoulder seam, to gauge the right amount to be cut away in front so that this Robotham man (whoever he was)

would look slimmer than he deserved.

His long, bony wrist followed the curve of the chalked lines like an artist's. He was unconscious of his surroundings, being carried away on a wave of exaltation. The coat he had chalked out was a work of art. He had designed it himself. The head cutter himself could not equal it. At last this Robotham would know what a perfect fitting coat meant.

Macpherson picked up the heavy tailor's scissors and began to cut it out.

Mr. Robotham had arranged for his new suit, when finished, to be sent to an hotel. For Mr. Robotham was getting married, and this dressy blue suit he had ordered was the one he intended changing into after the ceremony.

So much trust had Robotham in his tailor's workmanship that he did not trouble to open the box containing the suit until the time came for him to change.

Despite the emancipation of women, her wedding-day is still acknowledged to be the greatest in any girl's life. For a bridegroom, if it is not the greatest, it is certainly one of the greatest anxiety.

But anxiety is much too feeble and insipid a word to express Mr. Robotham's feelings when he opened that box and found, not a complete suit as he had expected, but two coats and one vest. No words issued from his lips at all, he was struck dumb!

After all, however much a tailor may deplore the necessity for trousers to be included in a suit of clothes, they are essential to a man who wishes to appear well-dressed. However well-fitting a coat may be, that fact would pass unnoticed if he omitted to wear a pair of trousers with it. And Mr. Robotham's figure was not a romantic one, he was too fat for that, and without trousers any shreds of romance attending it would quickly disappear.

Not once but a dozen times did Robotham fold and unfold the numerous sheets of tissue paper in the box, hoping a pair of trousers might by some magic become visible. Not once but a dozen times, after he realised his hopes were dashed, did he pace from bed to mirror, in his pale blue summer-weight underwear, lifting his hands to heaven and calling strange and fearful curses down upon his tailor's head.

A few privileged guests had the unique experience of seeing a frenzied bridegroom, in pale blue underwear, running along the hotel corridor bawling loudly for a telephone. After considerable delay Mr. Robotham departed on his honeymoon wearing an old suit and an air of extreme nervous tension.

Some people who make a study of the signs and portents on such occasions declared the omen to be a good one.

But if it turned out lucky for Robotham, Macpherson could hardly view it in that light. It required very little investigation, after Robotham's frantic telephone message, for the firm to discover the diabolical hand responsible for the outrage.

So that was the last day, in that shop, that Macpherson answered to the call of "Trousers."

The stout gentleman, leaned back in his chair and chuckled softly to himself at the conclusion of his tale. "I asked him how he came to know all the details of the affair so well. Was he a guest at the wedding?"

"My name," he replied with another chuckle, "is Robotham."

"Now I understand," I said. "And it took me some considerable time before I saw the full humour of my predicament. But I can even laugh over it with the original culprit when I order a suit nowadays."

"Then this Macpherson was rehabilitated after all?" I asked.

"Oh no!" answered the stout gentleman. "You see, after such an experience I changed my tailor. At the time I felt justified. I can tell you. But, strange as it may seem, it was I who recommended this Macpherson to my present the difference. Out of curiosity I talked. He is now a tall bloke and inquired which was Macpherson. That was very magnificent phrasing, but of who the better of you, but what I also said that Macpherson was the one who rather forgotten I ventured. ## NAZI PROTEST NOTE

Being Considered By Switzerland

Berne, To-day.

The Swiss Federal Council met yesterday to consider the German protest note against the prohibition of the National-Socialist Party organisation in Switzerland. The following statement was given to the press:

"The Chief of the Political Department, Federal Councillor Dr. G. Motta, announced the receipt and contents of the German protest note. The Federal Council will, however, deal with the matter with requisite calm in several days' time, and a draft for an answer is now being prepared by the Political Department, in co-operation with the Departments of Justice and the Police."

"As Federal Councillor Bauman of the Department of Justice and the Police will not be able to attend the next meeting of the Federal Council, the ultimate decision will only be reached in eight days' time."—Trans-Ocean Service.

WOMAN'S CLIFF LEAP

Attempted Suicide, But Died From Exposure

LOST HER SOUL.

Evidence that a woman told the matron of a nursing home that she had lost her soul was given at an inquest at Shanklin, L.O.W., recently, on Miss Eva L. Buck. She disappeared from the nursing home in her night clothes, and her body was found in the Landslip near Bonchurch.

It was stated that Miss Buck had been under the impression lately that she had committed a sin. A friend said that there was no trouble to cause her stated of mind.

60-foot Fall

A ventnor fisherman, who found Miss Buck, said she must have fallen 60ft. down a cliff. She was wearing pyjamas, a dressing gown and an overcoat, but no shoes or stockings.

Dr. W. T. Melhuish said the injuries from the fall were not sufficient to cause death, which in his opinion was due to exposure.

The verdict recorded was that Miss Buck died from exposure, having, during a period of insanity, attempted suicide by throwing herself from the cliff.

SURPRISE AT INQUEST

Woman With £5,000
Gassed

Miss Florence Madeleine Edith Sykes, aged 45, of Canonbury-sq., N., who was found unconscious in a gas-filled room and died in hospital, was stated by the coroner at a St. Pancras inquest recently to have received a letter from the Public Trustee concerning £5,000 of stock.

Her landlady, Mrs. Edith Mary Matland, said she was eccentric and "very close." Referring to the £5,000, Mrs. Matland said she had no idea that Miss Sykes had so much money.

The coroner, recording a verdict of accidental death, said there was not sufficient evidence to show whether Miss Sykes killed herself deliberately.

"Miss Sykes," said Mrs. Matland afterwards "gave no impression that she was of means. In fact, from her dress one would have thought her to be very poor. She had a mania for hoarding newspapers."

BETTING POOLS ON SOCCER

A GRAVE EVIL. London: At a meeting in Manchester of the directors of the Football League Clubs, called to consider the attitude of the League to "Pool Betting" on League matches, it was decided to ask the Government to introduce legislation to stop pools. Meanwhile, in order to prevent promoters from using the pool fixtures as the basis of their business, it was decided that for the remainder of the present football season League fixtures should be scrapped and new fixtures arranged. Clubs with home bookings will retain their dates, but until two days before each match the home clubs will not know who their opponents will be.

Representations for the suppression of pools were recently made to the Home Secretary by religious and social workers, who stated that betting of this kind had become a grave evil.—British Wireless Service.

GERMANY AND COLONIES

Chancellor Hitler declared that Germany was so strong now that she needed no help from the League of Nations. Germany did not even need treaties or alliances, he added.

Colonies, continued the Chancellor, were acquired by right of might. Europe needed raw materials and colonies, and by the heroic conception of life the white race was destined to rule. But if the ruling nations gave way to the pacifist idea of allowing the colonies to govern themselves, they would merely say: "We do not need Europe any longer," the Chancellor added.
